6.1.2 Effective leadership is reflected in various institutional practices such as decentralization and participative management etc.

Introduction

Vels Institute of Science, Technology and Advanced Studies (VISTAS) is deeply committed to empowering its staff by granting them significant academic and operational autonomy. This is achieved through a well-structured framework of decentralization and participative management. To further this goal, VISTAS assigns institutional-level portfolios to various academic leaders, such as Directors, Associate Directors, Deputy Directors, and Assistant Directors. This broad distribution of leadership roles enhances institutional governance and fosters a culture of shared responsibility.

To ensure smooth administration, VISTAS has established a variety of committees, centers, cells, clubs, and councils. These bodies are composed of teaching faculty, non-teaching staff, industry experts, subject experts, alumni, and representatives from NGOs, encouraging a diverse and collaborative approach to institutional decision-making. Faculty members play a significant role in various committees, with 72 members involved in institutional committees, centers, cells, and clubs. In addition, 106 faculty members contribute to the Academic Council, while 175 serve as Class Committee Chairpersons. This internal participation totals 353 active members within the institution.

Moreover, VISTAS values external perspectives to enrich its academic framework. The institution collaborates with 6 external experts on the Academic Council, 95 industrial and subject experts on the Board of Studies, and 29 alumni members contributing to the Board of Studies. In addition, the MBA Advisory Board benefits from the expertise of 19 industrial and subject specialists. In total, 149 external members are engaged in these important governance and advisory roles, enhancing the institution's academic and administrative practices. Totally 502 internal and external members are proactively involved by top management, reflecting effective leadership.

Deans, Directors, and HoDs play an active role in planning conferences, seminars, workshops, career counseling sessions, inter-departmental programs, and student exchange programs. These initiatives are designed to enhance the student learning experience. Empowered to introduce innovative and digital teaching aids, these leaders continuously work to elevate the quality of academic delivery. VISTAS' Innovation Lab also contributes by mobilizing funds and projects from both government and non-government sectors.

A prime example of VISTAS' commitment to decentralization and continuous improvement is the Class Committee Meetings, which function much like quality circles. These meetings involve voluntary student participation and address a wide range of topics, including curriculum, infrastructure, sports, cultural events, and co-curricular activities. Student suggestions are carefully considered, and the outcomes are reviewed by the appropriate authorities, who initiate corrective actions as needed.

The institution follows an open-door policy, allowing any stakeholder to meet with university authorities to discuss matters of individual or organizational well-being. Students, in particular, are encouraged to offer constructive feedback, which plays a key role in shaping the institution's development. This approach reflects VISTAS' dedication to inclusiveness and transparency.

Self-managed teams of faculty and students are formed for all institutional events, promoting a spirit of collaboration and shared responsibility. VISTAS also welcomes suggestions via email to further enhance research and academic quality. These suggestions are reviewed, and necessary actions are taken to maintain high institutional standards. Deans, Directors, and HoDs are empowered to implement university policies with full academic freedom in areas such as student admissions, examinations, finance, procurement, and inventory management. This delegation of authority fosters a strong sense of ownership and responsibility among academic leaders.

Through its strategic emphasis on decentralization and participative management, VISTAS not only empowers its staff but also fosters leadership at all levels, ensuring both operational and academic excellence. This holistic approach aligns with VISTAS' mission to provide high-quality education while fostering an inclusive, progressive educational environment.
